

Every city or region that wants to attract people, business and investment requires a startup community to serve as an integral part of its 21st century economy.

- Brad Feld, cofounder of Techstars

Principles of a Vibrant Startup Community

- Entrepreneur-led
- Leaders are committed over the long term
- Inclusive
- Active and engaging the entire spectrum

5 Themes

For Community Building

Talent

Density

Culture

Capital

Institutions

Culture

- Connectedness
- Collaboration
- Mutual Promotion
- Community Storytelling

- Silos
- Competition
- Self Promotion
- Credit-taking

#givefirst

Talent

- Goal of 2% ?
- Cross-community support
- Startup events
- Talent development
- Growing mentor cadre

- Lack of goals
- Competition
- Prescribed events

#givefirst

Density

- Community
- Access
- Critical Mass

- Fragmentation
- Lack of Support

$$\text{Entrepreneurial Density} = \frac{\text{(Number of Entrepreneurs + Number of people working for startups or high growth companies)}}{\text{Adult Population}}$$

Capital

- Track record
- Credibility
- “Ask / give” behavior;
mutual needs met

- “Know somebody...”
attitude
- Needs imbalance

Institutions

- Grass roots approach
- Government supportive
- College/university engagement
- Corporate engagement

- Top-down approach by government

Principles of a Vibrant Startup Community

- Entrepreneur-led
- Leaders are committed over the long term
- Inclusive
- Active and engaging the entire spectrum

Jack Schammel

TEDCO RBP² Mentor

Leading Logic LLC

P 443.617.7614

7021 Columbia Gateway Dr., Suite 200, Columbia, MD 21046

E jschammel@tedco.md | W tedcomd.com

